Technical Details!

HTML

- Four HTML files
 - Home Page, About Page, Tutors Page, and Request a Tutors Page
- Standard heading for all pages using the header, nav, ul, li, and tags
- Home Page: Basic site info and news feed
 - Used section and aside tags
- About: Information about the makers of the site
 - Used article and img tags
- Tutors: The politicians we offer and their classes
 - Same as “About” but ul and li tags were used for the lessons on the side
- Request a Tutors Page: JavaScript for form
 - Used the form tag; Used text, submit, reset, radio, and datalist elements for the form

CSS

Design Process:

- The website built to look functional on desktop monitor
- The headings and some of the text boxes were styled
 - Heading designed to follow as you scroll (Set the position to fixed)
 - Hovering over the tabs changes color
 - Added shadows and rounded corners to the text boxes
- More responsive design with screen sizes (@media)
- Finalization and general aesthetic checks
 - American flag look

JavaScript

- Form asks customers for first name, last name, desired tutor, and what day they want to have a tutoring session
- Also includes a reset and submit button
- Makes sure there is valid input before submitting the form
- When submitting the information, the website provides a summary of the information you submitted
- When the day (MTWRFSS) is submitted, our JavaScript code determines the actual date of the day (MM/DD/YYYY)
